According to Stats Canada, the cancer death toll in Canada for 2007 will approach 73,000. The Canadian Cancer Society is fighting to save lives like these in an ongoing campaign to stop cancer. In March, the Cancer Society raises funds by selling fresh daffodils. These flowers are a symbol of hope, and proceeds go towards providing vital community services and funding cancer research.

At Gallop Logistics, we go out of our way to make contributions back to our community, and we are thrilled that one of our carrier's shares this philosophy. From March 24th, 2008 to April 1st, 2008, Light Speed Logistics will have their trailer stationed at the Canadian Tire parking lot at Dundas and Kipling for the storage of these flowers. In 2007, the Canadian Cancer Society was able to raise over three million dollars from the sale of fresh daffodils in Ontario. In 2008 we hope to help meet and exceed this target with the help of our community.

Sincerely,

Lorne Swartz
